

Camino Edmonton is a five-day walk anywhere from 84 to 110 km long through the mighty and beautiful kisiskâciwani-sîpiy (North Saskatchewan River Valley) from Devon to Fort Saskatchewan (or vice versa).

History/Notes

The Camino is the brainchild of two community-minded people who love to walk, Sheila Thompson and Graham Hicks. In 2018, they realized that there were nearly enough trails to walk from Devon to Fort Saskatchewan.

- You can start at either end.
- For the most part you can choose dirt or paved trails.
- In our sample route, we started at Bunchberry Meadows because we found the trails along the river in the Devon area not long enough.
- The side trip up the Whitemud Ravine is to make three middle days roughly the same length.
- There is no trail from Devon to the West Henday and there is no way from 167 Ave (the Quarry) to Riverside Nature Trail.

Disclaimer

The maps/proposed routes were put together by volunteers. Walk at your own risk. Trails are subject to erosion and may be closed for repair. Check city websites before you walk to ensure the route is open/safe.

Camino Edmonton

Maps

The maps are meant as a guide. You can start and end wherever you like and can walk the route in as many days as you wish.

Links to detailed maps

(Click to download.)

Bunchberry/Devon (https://bit.ly/cyegdev)

SW Edmonton (https://bit.ly/cyegswest)

Central Edmonton (https://bit.ly/cyegcentral)

NE Edmonton (https://bit.ly/cyegneast)

Fort Saskatchewan (https://bit.ly/cyegftsk)

A suggested route

- Bunchberry Meadows to Lions Campground (Devon) (~11 or 20 km)
- The EL Smith Water Treatment Plant to Rainbow Valley Campground (~20 km)
- Fort Edmonton Park to Gold Bar or Rundle Park (~20 km)
- Rundle Park to The Quarry Golf Course (~16 km)
- Riverside Nature Trail to Turner Park (~17 km)

Camino Edmonton

